- the project is expected to be immediately scalable across the country as required
- a vast amount of data has been gathered for the period 1st April to 31st August 2025, and is initially being sampled using one week from each month
- as an example, during a week in June 546 cyclists were recorded, compared with 90 cyclists in July and 5 cyclists in August. It is also possible to show how many cyclists used the crossing and how many were on the carriageway, although it was noted that not all cyclists travel from end to end, with many arriving or departing via side roads
- the gathering of data will continue for the duration of the three-year project
- during the three months of June, July and August a 5% reduction in average overnight speeds had been observed, with no accidents or incidents being recorded. It is hoped that the changes made under the project will maintain or improve driver behaviour
- an initial bio-diversity report is being finalised and should be published soon
- the bollards on the westbound side are still due to be removed, and the temporary measures of switching off every other bollard and covering the road-facing side of the remaining bollards have been completed
- the manufacturers of both the eastbound columns and the westbound bollards are due to visit the site to evaluate their products
- improvements to the road markings will be made in due course
